There Was Nothing Happening

You thought something was happening.
Something appearing.
Something changing.
Something unfolding.

But nothing began.

Nothing moved.

Nothing needed to happen.

The moment felt like something—but it didn’t require it.

There was nothing happening.
It only seemed that way.